

What is final expense insurance?

Final expense insurance is whole life insurance. Many families face unexpected expenses after the death of a loved one. Funeral costs, medical bills, and even outstanding credit card debt can add up. While life insurance does not guarantee that the proceeds will be sufficient to pay for any particular expense, it can help cover these expenses.

Final Expense Insurance is not preneed insurance and is not a funeral or burial contract. It does not specifically cover funeral goods and services.

By planning ahead you can prepare for these expenses and reduce some of your family's stress in a time when they are grieving.

EARLY PLANNING PROTECTS THOSE YOU CARE ABOUT MOST

Royal Neighbors has permanent life insurance coverage to help you pass on your love – not your debt. Best of all, it's simple. You decide how much insurance protection you need and can afford. You also choose who will receive your insurance benefits. In most cases, no physical exam is needed when you are applying for coverage.² Once you have been approved, your premiums will always remain the same.

This type of life insurance coverage may be a good option for you if:

- You are between the ages of 50 and 85.
- You want between $5,000 and $25,000 in coverage to help your loved ones with expenses when you die.
- You are looking for coverage options that may not require a physical exam.
- You wish to supplement the life insurance you already have.

We offer an Accelerated Living Benefit Rider³ with this coverage. If permanently confined to a nursing home or diagnosed with a terminal condition, a portion of the death benefit can be accessed and used to help fund your care or other needs. Additional fees and interest may apply.

This is not a funeral or burial contract and does not specifically cover funeral goods and services. The death benefit is paid to the designated beneficiary(s) who may use the proceeds for any purpose. This life insurance does not guarantee that the proceeds will be sufficient to pay for any particular goods or services, nor that those goods or services will be provided by any particular provider.
